Early Frontier - The Road to Indiana Statehood

Indiana was made a separate territory in 1800, achieving statehood in 1816. Pioneer life in "frontier" Indiana remained difficult for many years. Learn more about early Hoosier ancestors in many of the State Archives Collections. For more on the formation of early Indiana, be sure to visit the collaborative project of the Supreme Court and the Indiana Historical Bureau, The Road to Indiana Statehood. There you will find images of the original 1816 and 1851 Indiana Constitutions. These early treasures reside at the State Archives when they are not on display at the State House during the Legislative session. Land and court records are also a key to learning more about Indiana's early settlers and Native American Families. #### Indiana in the Civil War

More than 213,000 men joined Indiana regiments during the Civil War. Indianapolis served as a major staging center for the training and organization of troops. In 1862 the State Fairgrounds was transformed into a prison camp for Confederate soldiers, further involving Hoosier residents. [Governor Oliver P.
